Abstract

A knitted fabric and also a method and a device for the production thereof are described. The knitted fabric is formed according to the invention from a yarn material (4) which contains a continuous fibre web (5) in which staple fibres are disposed untwisted and essentially parallel to each other. The method and the device relate to measures according to the invention for supplying and processing the yarn material (4) (Fig. 5).

5